

Omni Broadcasting Network to Premiere “Retro Horror” Series of Movies

June 29, 2004

Las Vegas, NV – OBN Holdings, Inc. (OTCBB:OBNH) OBN Holdings, through its wholly owned subsidiary Omni Broadcasting Network, announces the production and airing of a series of “Retro Horror” films. The slate of films, which will be produced by Wray Film Productions, will be created in the same format as horror movies produced during the 1950s and early 1960s, and will air under the Omni umbrella “Thirteen O’clock Theater.” “I believe that these low-budget little films will again appeal to a new generation of teens and college students,” stated Dennis Johnson, President of Omni Broadcasting Network. “Broadening Omni’s original programming line-up is a positive step towards strengthening viewer numbers.”

Thirteen O’clock Theater, which is scheduled to premiere in the fall, will feature such original movies as “The Creep,” “Virus-Man,” and “Silver Angel vs. The Death Zombies.” Producer Gary Wray, considered an expert on ‘50s and ‘60s monster movies, heads Wray Film Productions. “I want us all to revisit that interesting era where sex and foul language weren’t such a big deal,” stated Wray. “I applaud Omni for deciding to take that step with me.”
